

DUKE KAHANAMOKU IS HOME LADEN WITH TROPHIES AND NEW RECORDS

World's Champion Swimmer Gets Great Reception as Sierra Steams Into the Harbor—Will Not Go Into Vaudeville but Expects to Return to San Francisco with Swimming Team to Compete in Portola Events

"Am I going into vaudeville? Certainly not," said Duke Kahanamoku, champion swimmer of the world, as he stepped off the Oceanic liner Sierra this morning and turned to greet his many friends assembled at the Oceanic dock to welcome him home. "While I was in San Francisco there was some talk of my going on the stage, but I paid no attention to it. Theatrical managers didn't interest me. Hawaii still looks good to me, and I am going to start in to train for the swimming events at the coming Portola in San Francisco, at which there will be a delegation of at least six Hawaiian swimmers."

The welcome which Duke received when he arrived from the coast city this morning was fitting for one who, besides achieving individual honors as a world's champion swimmer, has done splendid publicity work for Hawaii. A delegation of members of the Hui Nalu, reinforced by a Hawaiian quintet, boarded the customs launch and steamed out into the harbor, climbing aboard the Sierra and covering the champion with leis. The quintet took a position on the deck and struck up a medley of Hawaiian airs, while the rest crowded around Duke, and insisted upon his telling the story of "how he did it." As the Sierra neared the pier, several of the ship's officers were called to duty and stood at the rail, each holding one of the cups which Duke won while in San Francisco and cities of southern California. When Duke made his appearance at the rail, he was greeted by cheers from the crowd.

"Talk about a good time," said Duke when interviewed this morning, "we certainly had it in San Francisco and the other cities which we visited. I wish that the other members of the Hui Nalu team might have stayed longer. Everywhere we went we were treated fine, and I couldn't begin to tell you of the many times we were entertained. Bob Kaawa is having such a good time that he won't come home, and it is hard to tell when he will return to Honolulu. He isn't in vaudeville, but I do know that he is thinking strongly of going on the stage. I understand that he has had several good offers."

Welcomed Home.
Duke was unable to go into detail with regard to the different places he visited, probably because of the fact that several relatives, including his father, Police Captain Kahanamoku, were waiting to whisk him away to Waikiki where a sumptuous luau had been prepared in honor of his return. Some of the side trips which he made, and which impressed him most, he told of briefly. He spoke highly of the reception tendered the members of the team when they visited Monterey. A fiesta was under way there at the time, and the boys gave an exhibition swim which was witnessed by thousands of people.

"On several occasions during our visits in and about San Francisco, we had a chance to get into the surf with our boards," continued Duke, "and I believe that the surf riding was more of an attraction than was the swimming. At one time, when Kaupiko rode in on a breaker standing on his head on his board, twenty thousand people stared in amazement. I guess that the people who visit the California beaches have commenced to get the idea of surf riding, for we saw many people in the water with improvised boards. California is certainly a great place, and I can say nothing more than that we had the time of our lives."

As the result of his work in San Francisco, Duke brings back to Honolulu four more cups to add to his already large collection. Two of these were won at the Olympic games, one at Santa Cruz, and the other was a private gift. William T. Rawlins, manager for the Hui Nalu swimmers, said this morning that he had received an invitation to accompany a delegation of Hawaiian swimmers to San Francisco in the fall, to participate in the swimming events at the Portola, at which this had been accepted. Kahanamoku will lead the delegation, but the other swimmers have not as yet been chosen.

The Records.
During the contest at the Olympic Club tank, San Francisco, August 5, Duke was successful in setting new figures for the 25, 50 and 75 yards, the times being respectively 11 3/10 seconds, 23 2/5 seconds and 37 2/5 seconds. Duke was in the best of condition for the race, and so far outclassed the opposition that he was on the side of the tank at the finish, watching his two opponents fight it out for second place. These three records were made in one swim, timers taking their places on the 25, 50 and 75 yard distances, while a separate set of timers were placed at the 75 yard distance. The times of each watch were taken and certified and were forwarded to the Amateur Athletic Union in New York for recognition as national records. These times were then asked to be verified by the nations of the world as world marks.

In this race, Duke had as his opponents Maestri, Lewis and Parich, and was a little slow in the start. After he had gained the water, however, he set down into his famous crawl stroke, and reached the first turning point four big yards ahead of Maestri. The 25 yards was over a straightaway, and was clocked at 11 3/10 seconds, breaking the previous world mark of 11 2/5 seconds, held by Daniels of New York. The 50 yards was clocked at 23 2/5 seconds, breaking Wickham's figure by a fifth of a second. Two turns were required in the 75 yard distance, the time being caught at 37 2/5 seconds, which is 1 1/5 seconds better than Duke's own previous time. The former record, however, was on a straightaway, and will stand as a record on that condition, shall be entitled to three bases."

The artillery was much handicapped by the absence of Gray, and neither Kent, Nemecsek or Curran seemed able to throw anything in the direction of the plate that he infantry couldn't land on. Two homers, a triple, two doubles and nine singles is going some for an afternoon's batting. For the infantry, Stovoski, a new six-footer, did the twirling and thirteen wagon soldiers and their big hitters at that took three heaves and the bench. In the ninth, he was touched for three clean singles in a row and, with the bases full, old Joe Byrne made the catch of his life when he gathered in with one far-extended hand, Pastori's drive and doubled Curran at second for the final out. There was no jinx in evidence and the strides this 1st infantry team are making in these tag-end of the season games is giving the fans much cause to wonder. Their batting puts them securely into second place in the league batting averages and has made a wide space between them and the artillery who follow.

The 25th infantry, 4th cavalry game scheduled for Saturday, has been postponed until Tuesday at the usual hour on account of the illness of two of the cavalry team.

OAHU LEAGUE GAMES GO FOR EXTRA FRAMES

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Portuguese 3, Coast Defense 2, (11 innings).

Asahi 14, Stars 12, (10 innings).
It isn't often that two extra-inning games fall to the lot of the fans in a single afternoon, but that's what happened yesterday at Athletic Park. This season, one good and one bad contest, has been the rule of the Oahu League, but yesterday was the exception, both games being snappy and highly interesting, the first requiring two extra frames for a decision, and the second going ten innings.

As was expected, the Portuguese and the Coast Defenders put up a great exhibition of the national game. Medeiros was on the slab for the P. A. Cs., while Lawson worked for the Artillerymen. The latter had their batting clothes on in the first, and landed on "Smiling Tony" for three hits in the opening frame, which netted a single run. In the third Hixenbaugh landed on the sphere for a homer that didn't go out of the lot, which gives an idea of how hard the ball was hit, and how Hixy burned up the paths making the full circuit.

It wasn't until the fifth that the Portuguese put a man across but in that frame they made a neat job of it by scoring two and tying up the game. Neither side scored again until the final half of the eleventh. Zamiska grounded to Lawson, who got the ball without trouble, but overthrew the first sack, the runner being given second. This piece of luck gave the Portuguese heart, and Souza came to the front with a single to right. Bushnell lifted an easy one over short, and the game was over.

Many Runs.
The Asahi came up from behind, and made a hair-raising finish in the closer. The Stars accumulated four runs in the first and a like number in the second, touching Moriama for eight safeties in these two frames. When three more Stars uniforms flashed over the pan in the fourth, making the run total 11, to the Asahi three, it looked to be all over but the shouting. The Japanese players came to life, however, and took advantage of Star wildness, getting two runs in the fifth and five in the sixth. A brace in the ninth tied the score, and in the tenth the Asahi got two more runs without a single hit. The Stars had shot their bolt, and were unable to come back in their half of the extra frame.

POLO TOURNAMENT OPENS WITH OAHU VICTORY OVER CAVALRY

In order to give the men of the Fourth Cavalry polo team well deserved credit for their part in last Saturday's game against Oahu, it is necessary to knock one department of their polo machine—the mounts. The old saw of "love me love my dog," cannot be altered to include equines, and then applied to the army's polo representatives. The cavalry team was much under-horsed Saturday, and the scores would have been many goals closer together had the mounts been up to standard.

The final score of the initial game of the inter-island tournament was 13½ to 1½, with Oahu on the long end. Each team was penalized half a goal, so that in reality, in six periods of play, Oahu scored 12 more goals than did the soldiers. The luck of the game was a bit against the cavalry which should have had about three more goals. Once the ball came to rest less than a foot short of the goal line, after a cavalry man had made sure that it was well over, and once a bad hop at the last minute caused Cullum to miss the posts by less than a foot. Both these near-scores came at the mauka end of the field, where it is hardest to get the ball through the posts. At the makai end, the cavalry also had a couple of close shaves that would have added to their goal total nine times out of ten. Early Lead for Oahu.

Oahu had the game well in hand after the first period, and the men in blue played under wraps. Not that they were loafing on the job, or consciously easing up in their riding, but that the inspiration of a close, and hard-fought game was lacking, and that the extra portion of snap and ginger for every yard of the field, was not in evidence. Oahu was good and bad in streaks, but the individual work and the combination play being a little uncertain. This, however, can be explained by the fact that in the third period Oahu had to make an entire shift, owing to an accident to Sam Baldwin, who was struck on the head by a stick and forced to retire from the game. Arthur Rice took the saddle, going in at back. This shifted Dillingham from back to No. 3, and Castle from 3 to 2. Walter Macfarlane being the only man unaffected by the shake-up. It was to be expected that a wholesale shift of this sort would unsteady the combination of the team. Rain Lets Up.

The game started at 3:20, after one of the showers that fell at frequent intervals during the day. Luck was with the poloists, though, and there was no rain to amount to anything for the remainder of the afternoon. The cavalry lined up with Lieutenants Cullum, Cook, Lyman and Cheney, playing in the order named. They made a smart appearance in their old-gold shirts, with the crest of the regiment emblazoned in blue. The Oahu four took the field with Macfarlane, Baldwin, Castle and Dillingham playing 1, 2, 3 and back respectively. They wore blue shirts, with white sleeve bands, all the players wearing the regulation polo rig of white breeches and brown boots, together with a safety helmet or cap. The referees were Colonel S. D. Sturgis, of the 1st Field Artillery, and Laurence Redington, of Honolulu. Colonel Sturgis bowled in the first ball, and the game was on.

Play was very even for the first two minutes of play, the superiority of the Oahu four not being apparent until both teams had steadied down to the real business of the game. In fact, the Cavalry got off in front, carrying the ball down to the makai goal, which Oahu was defending, and making an excellent showing. It looked as though Oahu might be up against the biggest surprise in its polo history.

Castle Scores First.
Castle got the ball finally, and with a clean run-up the field scored the initial goal in just 2 minutes of playing time. Dillingham sent the white sphere through 1 minute and 30 seconds after the throw-in, and the next time the ball was put in play at the center, it took Cullum, the Cavalry's snappy No. 1, just 35 seconds to get the ball through the posts. The army contingent let out a great cheer when the first goal was hung up on the soldiers' side of the big score board on the hill.

Before the second period was far along, the superiority of the Oahu ponies was apparent. They were outfooting the cavalry mounts whenever two players came together in a race for the ball, and in appearance as well as speed showed up far better. The fourth goal of the game was hit by Sam Baldwin, after 2 minutes and 10 seconds of play, and Dillingham again scored for the Blues in 1:10. Cullum then got the ball over the goal line in 45 seconds. Mouth of the cavalry goals were made soon after the throw in, Cullum getting the ball and being under way before the Blues could get after him. The start he gained made up for the difference in speed of the ponies.

The period ended with the score 4 to 2.

Baldwin Hurt.
Castle scored in 2:20 in the third, and a minute later, just before Dillingham shot a goal, Sam Baldwin met with the accident that put him out of the game. He and Lyman were riding close together, and the latter, in making a long reach for the ball, hit the Oahu No. 2 on the face. Baldwin was dazed, and time was called just after the goal had been made. Although the cut itself was not serious, Baldwin suffered a severe concussion, and was made dizzy from the accident. Arthur Rice took his place, and the shift of positions above noted went into effect. A trifle more than 4 minutes of play remained, and in this time Castle shot another goal, increasing Oahu's lead to 7 to 2, at half time. Half a goal was deducted in this period for a penalty against Macfarlane.

Rice, Dillingham, Castle and Dillingham again, scored in the fourth, the army players being up on ponies that had already played one hard period, and that showed their lack of cases when called upon for a second time.

Macfarlane shot a pretty goal 2 minutes after the fifth frame opened, this being the only score of the chukkur. Rice and Castle scored in the sixth and last period. It was in this chukkur that the cavalry twice failed to shoot the mauka goal, when success seemed certain.

Cavalry Improved.
Taken as a whole, the army four played its best polo in the first, fifth and sixth periods. The players were a little demoralized in the mid part of the game, but improved toward the end, in spite of the fact that they were riding tired ponies. Of the individuals, Cullum at No. 1 had the most chances to show his form, and showed to excellent advantage. He hits well, and has the knack of getting under full headway whenever he sees an opening for a run. Cheney played a heady game at back, and made some clever saves, in spite of the fact that Walter Macfarlane was riding him hard most of the time. Lyman at 3, and Cook at 2, who also had the responsibility of captaining the team, did their parts in approved style.

The five men who wore the blue of Oahu played the game all the time, with the exception of a few breaks in team work before mentioned. They won so easily that they would have been foolish to risk themselves and their ponies by putting on added pace, and unless a polo team is going hammer and tongs, it is hard to maintain exact formation. Walter Macfarlane proved his worth as a No. 1, and Castle, both at 3 and 2, played brilliantly, perhaps more so than any of his teammates. Baldwin was hitting well before his accident, and Rice, who replaced him, showed good judgment as well as good polo, for Captain Walter Dillingham showed marked improvement over his hitting of the last few weeks. He has been off his stroke, owing to constant riding and schooling of green-ponies, but Saturday he came back nicely, his dribbling and turning of the ball being a feature. He was also very accurate on goal shots.

Crowd Not Large.
The crowd didn't come up to last year's turnout, but it was fair sized, and very appreciative of the good points of the play. The arrangements for handling the autos, and the work of the mounted police in regulating the traffic to and from the field were excellent.

Following is the official score:

ALL-MAUI TEAM TRIMS PUNS IN LIGHTNING GAME

The All-Maui baseball team scored the only victory to the credit of the Valley Island in last Saturday's carnival of inter-island sport in celebration of Maui's annual harvest home. The Punahou Athletic Club team was forced to take the short end of a 382 score after a contest that was a hummer from start to finish.

The last event on the day's program, the ball game between Maui and Punahou, was scheduled for 4 o'clock at Wailuku. In spite of the water-soaked field, the teams decided to play. Here is where Maui had held herself in reserve and was able to put in a fresh team, with the exception of Captain Meyers at first. The Punahous had been in either the swimming or tennis or both, but nevertheless they played a fast game.
